M'tzora

(leper)

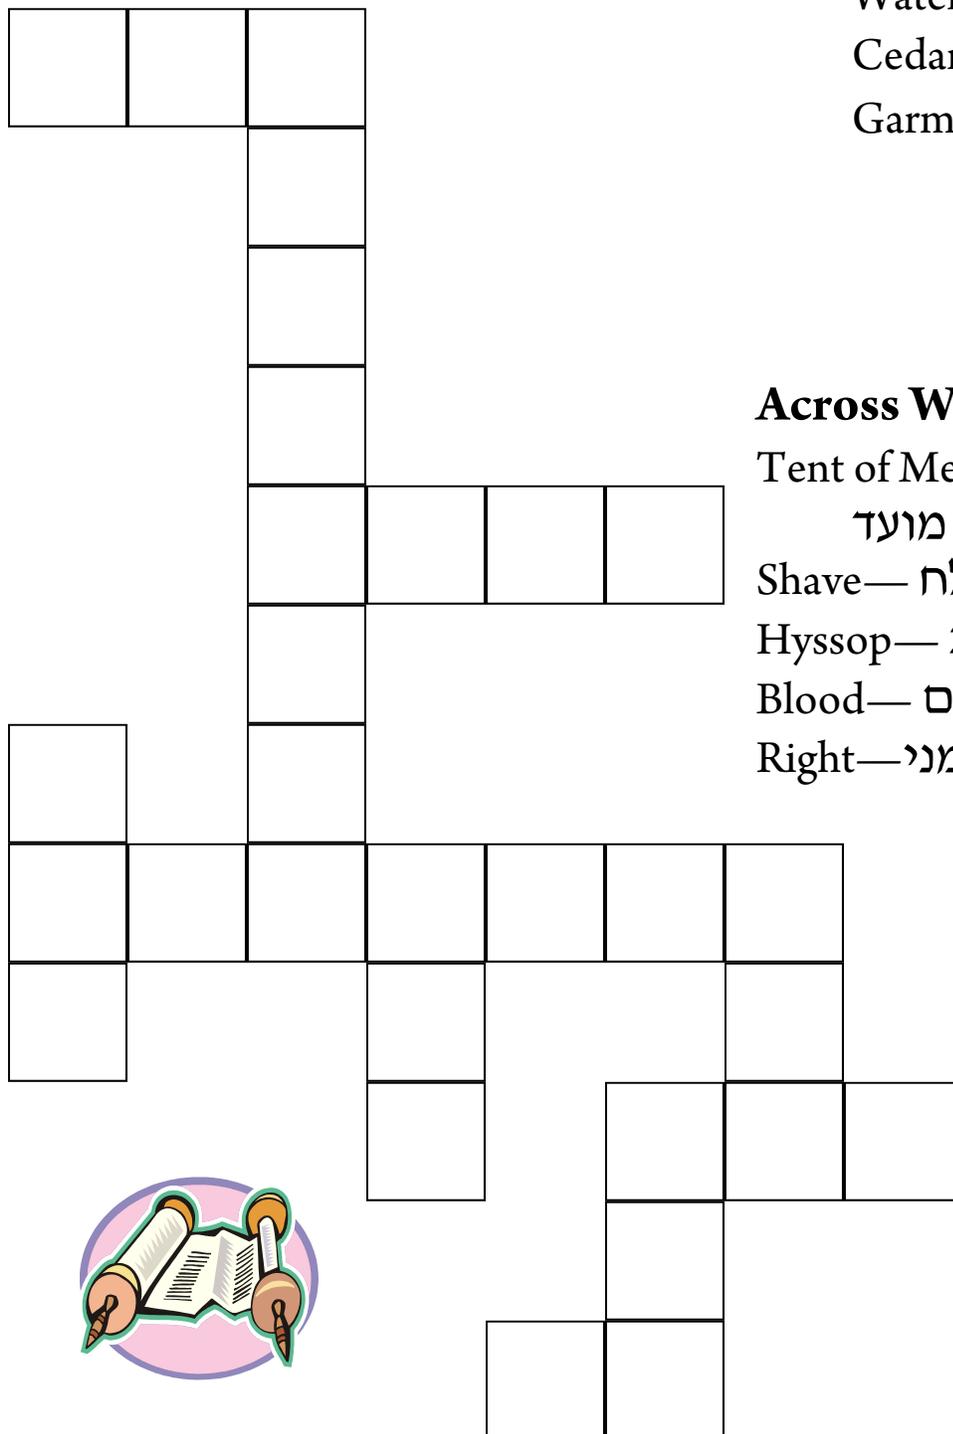

When a person is cleansed of leprosy, YHWH commands that certain very specific things be done. The Torah of cleansing specifies that the priest go outside the camp and examine the person who had the leprosy. If the priest finds no sign of leprosy then the person who has been healed is to take two live doves, cedar wood, a scarlet string and hyssop. The priest orders that one of the live birds is to be killed over water and then dip the other dove, the scarlet string and the cedar wood in the water and then sprinkle the person who was healed of leprosy seven times with that water. Then the live bird is to be taken out into the country and released.

After all that is done, then the person who was cleansed may enter into the camp. However, he may not enter into his own tent for seven more days. On the seventh day he is to shave all the hair off of his entire body. He is to shave his head, he is to shave his beard, he is to shave his eyebrows, he is to shave every place where he has hair on his body.

Then he shall wash his body with water and then he shall be clean.
