YHWH was telling Moshe different commandments to tell the people. Whoever killed someone was to be put to death themselves, but if you were in harm's way and you were just protecting your family, then it was not your fault, and therefore you were not to blame. Anyone who mistreated a widow or orphan was to be put to death.

"If a man shall give money or vessels to his fellow to safeguard, and it is stolen from the house of the man, if the thief is found he shall pay double."

Sh'mot 22:6

He also commanded us to keep the festivals and Shabbat, and to garden for six years, then let it rest every seventh year.

YHWH told Moshe to go back up the mountain. Moshe ascended the mountain, and the cloud covered it. After Moshe had been on the mountain for six days, YHWH called to him. Moshe stayed on the mountain for forty days and forty nights.
